

ALS adopt SEAL AQ2 Discrete Analysers

ALS Environmental provides reliable analytical testing data that helps industry, consulting agencies, engineering firms and governments around the world make informed decisions about their environmental projects.

Their comprehensive range of environmental testing and technical support services is complemented by their solid commitment to quality and customer service. This dedication has lead ALS to adopt the SEAL AQ2 as the analyser for many inorganic tests traditionally carried out using FIA or CFA instruments.

Dr Tim Williams, the Australian SEAL product manager said he was delighted with the outcome. "ALS can now handle all sorts of digested matrices, waters and waste waters with simple, robust, easy to use methods." He added, "It's been hard work to get to this point, but the SEAL AQ2 will guarantee that ALS produces results with the highest integrity, effectively and efficiently".
